For the Dentists and any interested Dental Team Staff

Clinicians are constantly challenged to make informed decisions regarding what techniques and materials should be incorporated into their daily practice. New composites, bonding agents, etc. emerge in the market on a regular basis. We will simplify some of the more challenging procedures we do every day.

Diagnosis, treatment planning, case presentations, and how excellent results were obtained, sometimes with less than desirable beginnings will be discussed. This is real-life dentistry that we all have to deal with in our practices. You will leave this program armed with numerous tips and techniques that you can easily and quickly incorporate in your clinical practice.

Whether you're a seasoned clinician or starting out, this program will be relevant.

OBJECTIVES:

- learn how to minimize or eliminate post-op sensitivity
- learn how to differentiate between various bonding systems
- learn about matrix systems to ensure predictable contacts
- learn helpful tips for proper shade selection
- learn the benefits of chameleon composites
- learn about finishing and polishing composites to a life-like luster
- learn better ways of motivating patients to accept treatment plans
- learn how to treat unusual and/or problematic cases
